

The Future of Procurement is here

CPO's Agenda

CPOs need to take countless decisions to ensure that cost of materials & services procured are meeting all desired criteria of quality & services at most competitive prices.

Ardent Partners conducted a survey in the beginning of the year 2015 which was reflecting the CPO's top priorities for the year 2015 as shown in the below graph:

Today CPO's wish to see superior management of spend which can be effectively addressed thru real time availability of information, minimizing transaction time, instant availability of desired analytics and complete visibility of all spend to be most effective to generate savings for the organization thru superior quality of decisions

Many large to mid-sized organizations have already taken an initiative to accomplish their top priorities by taking an advantage of Technology. CPO's have realized that automation and adoption of technology is critical to enhance procurement function's value within the organization. As a result, they are seeing more immediate benefits such as increased efficiencies with reduced errors, cost reductions, spending controls and compliance.

*Don't ignore the cost of
 'WAITING'*
 - as indirectly this might be contributing to significant unknown costs daily to the organization.
